

Pleasant Valley Joint School Faces Short Sessions

Building Program Key To Future

By Leonard Randolph
PLEASANT Valley Joint School system is threatened by half-day sessions in 1959-60.

And unless the Jointure gets its building program started soon it may lose its state priority for construction and have to wait eight to 10 years for a new school.

This was the main feature of a "desperate" visit by joint board members to Monroe County Commissioners yesterday.

The joint board is struggling to get a building program started for its proposed new secondary school. It cannot start that program until Monroe County's forthcoming tax equalization program is more nearly complete.

Yesterday County Commission chairman John R. Lesoine told the joint board delegation that "there is absolutely no doubt we will have the new assessments and property values on the 1959 tax duplicate."

But Lesoine said he could not give the joint board an "absolute assurance" of when property value figures will be available for the four townships in Pleasant Valley.

Townships

Those townships are Eldred, Chestnut Hill, Polk and Ross. J. L. Jacobs Co. is now working on appraisal figures for Ross "and they tell me they expect to have those figures very shortly," Lesoine said.

Toward the close of the conference, Commissioners promised the joint board delegates to "do everything we can to have appraisal figures for you for your townships by August 1."

Members of the Pleasant Valley delegation were: Clyde Dietrich, head of the joint school board; Lloyd Altomose, board member and John C. Mills, supervising principal of Pleasant Valley schools.

Mills served as spokesman. He told Commissioners:

"We're in a desperate spot out in the West End. Our bonding counsel has told us they cannot certify us to the State Department of Public Instruction until we have figures on appraisal market value and the assessment percentage for the four townships."

"We will be unable to take care of our children in 1959. We can't house them for the coming year with the space we have right now."

"If we can get the market value of our districts, so we can start construction in September, the architects have promised us the building can be finished in time for the opening of school in 1959. Do you have any idea when we can look for figures for the West End?"

Lesoine then said:

"You remember we asked Jacobs Co. to do the Pleasant Valley districts first. But they were hit by bad weather. And they've been having a terrific time with Ross Township (tax mapping) where properties have been transferred within families. They expect to have figures on Ross very shortly."

"We will definitely have the new figures on the 1959 duplicate; there's no doubt about that."

Altomose commented:

"We expected to have the figures by June 15. That was the impression we got from Marvin Miller (Jacobs Co. field representative from Chicago). If we don't get started on construction by September, we just won't have a school by 1959-60."

Clyde Dietrich then brought up the matter of "losing our place in line for construction with the department."

"If we lose our place with the PIBB-40 form in Harrisburg, this could set us back eight to 10 years," he said. (This was a reference to the priority system which operates to give school districts in the state funds with which to finance school construction. Pleasant Valley is now high on the list of priority.)

"We've been very fortunate all the way through, in that they (the DPI building section) have gone along with us this far," Altomose said.

At this point County Solicitor L. A. Achterman told the group:

"You're asking questions, of course, that the Commissioners can't really answer."

He handed the group a letter dated June 12 from Jacobs local office asking for an extension of time on the project. Commissioners have still not granted the extension.

"Now you have a company which says they can't finish on time," Achterman said, and the county can't do anything about that. He said that it would do no good to try to bring in another company "because they couldn't finish the work any faster — and probably not as fast."

Commissioner Willard Quick then said that he felt Pleasant Valley should have the figures (Please turn to Page Three).

Adams To Appear Before Committee

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sherman Adams announced yesterday he will go before a House subcommittee today to make a personal explanation of his relations with Bernard Goldfine, his millionaire Boston friend.

Adams, President Eisenhower's No. 1 aide, said he was disposed to answer "every one" of the questions which have arisen relating to his actions "in connection with two matters before independent agencies," both involving Goldfine's business interests.

At the same time Eisenhower, through press secretary, James C. Hagerty, informed newsmen that "he knows of no individual, in or out of government, that he has more confidence in than Sherman Adams."

These developments crowded upon evidence unfolded by the House investigators that the Federal Trade Commission had voted criminal prosecution of Goldfine, a big textile manufacturer.

Testimony

Testimony developed that a commission wool expert had recommended a criminal misdemeanor or prosecution for alleged mislabeling of textiles but was overruled by his superiors.

This case developed in the spring of 1955, at which time Adams has acknowledged that he personally set up an appointment for Goldfine with the then FTC chairman.

Adams has challenged as unjust and unfair what he terms insinuations that he obtained favored treatment for Goldfine.

Evidence also was produced by the subcommittee yesterday that Goldfine had paid $267.05 in hotel bills for Adams at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York early in 1954. Textile mislabeling complaints against Goldfine were being settled at the FTC around this time.

Area Figures In Highway Contracts

HARRISBURG (AP)—The State Highways Department said yesterday it has contracted for more than 61 million dollars worth of federal aided construction in the last six months.

Lewis M. Stevens, highways secretary, said the State Highway and Bridge Authority put up $36,032,200 in matching funds through which the department will eventually finance a $153,054,900 federal-state roadway construction program.

50 Projects

The program consists of 50 projects, and last month the authority added a 51st. By the end of this month the department will have advertised for bids on 32 projects.

The $61,623,717 involves 110 miles of major construction work. Of that total, $37,897,065 is represented in 46.92 miles of interstate superhighway projects and the balance by primary highway program projects.

Among the interstate projects still to be advertised are sections of the Penn-Can Highway in Susquehanna and Lackawanna counties and the final section of the Erie Throughway.

Among the primary program projects to be advertised are the Greensburg, Butler and Worthington by-passes; the Indiana-Homer City Road, U. S. Route 30 between Fort Loudon and Saint Thomas in Franklin County and relocated traffic route 12 from Wind Gap to Saylorsburg and Snyder'sville in Northampton and Monroe Counties.

Imre Nagy Executed

LONDON (AP)—Radio Moscow announced today Hungary's ex-Premier Imre Nagy, ousted after the Soviets crushed the 1956 rebellion, has been executed along with three associates.

The broadcast said they were condemned after trial by a people's court.

The other three were Maj. Gen. Pal Maleter, Hungarian hero of the revolt, Miklos Gimes and Jozsef Szilagyi.

Five other associates of Nagy who were toppled from power when the Soviet Union intervened were handed prison terms, the broadcast said.

Philadelphia Advised Of Advantages

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Greater Philadelphia area would benefit rather than suffer from the construction of the Keystone Shortway, a Hazleton industrialist told officials of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

Wilbur J. Evans, plant manager of Dorr-Oliver, Inc., and president of the Greater Hazleton Chamber of Commerce, headed a six-man shortway delegation at the regular monthly meeting of the officers and board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce of Greater Philadelphia. The board has not taken a position on the controversial shortway proposal.

Philadelphia Mayor Richardson Dilworth and the Greater Philadelphia Movement, a civic group, have expressed opposition to construction of the free road which would cross the state from Sharon to Stroudsburg.

Evans told the group of some 50 Philadelphia area business leaders millions of dollars would flow into the Philadelphia market from the shortway area residents after the highway was built.

Still Closer

He said Philadelphia will still be closer to the shortway than New York; that the indebtedness of the turnpike would be paid off and the tolls removed before the shortway could be completed and that "on the basis of projected statistics, by the time the shortway is completed, there will be more than sufficient traffic to keep both the shortway and the turnpike facilities crowded to capacity."

In Washington yesterday, a Pennsylvania House member proposed that construction of a superhighway to link Erie with other Pennsylvania cities to the south and east be given priority over the proposed shortway.

Rep. John R. Saylor, Johnstown Republican, said the state "should and must have a good highway link with the St. Lawrence Seaway."

"Above all, priority should be given to improvement of the port of Erie—and then a road or roads to join the Pennsylvania turnpike leading to Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and central Pennsylvania," Saylor said.

Payne Leads In Maine

PORTLAND, Maine (AP)—Sen. Frederick G. Payne was running more than five to one ahead of his opponent, Herman D. Sahagian, in early, fragmentary returns from his Republican nomination bid in Monday's Maine primaries.

Payne got 2,417 votes to Sahagian's 408 in 96 of Maine's 632 precincts.

2,000 People Present At Pageant, Fireworks

By Don Allen
COMBINE A fireworks display with a bunch of beautiful girls and you've got an attraction for everyone in the family—young or old.

And the reaction of 2,000 people who crowded East Stroudsburg's Memorial Stadium last night seemed to be one of approval.

Rapidly dropping temperatures and a biting wind failed to dampen the carnival atmosphere which prevailed for the two and three-quarters hour show.

The crowd whistled, clapped hands and gave out with a few wolf calls as the beauty contestants strutted their stuff and oiled and ached at the fireworks display.

Biggest hand of the night was for the 10 finalists in the beauty pageant, the winner of which will be chosen Thursday evening.

The winner and the two runners-up will preside at the Four-County Firemen's Assn. banquet Friday at the American Legion Home and will head the parade which concludes the association convention Saturday.

The winner will receive a $200 prize, while the second and third place choices will each receive $100.

The finalists, and the company they represent, are Connie Sandt, Stroud Township; Nancy Kibler, Towamensing; Carol Young, Lehigh; Matilda Riedmiller, Bushkill; Elizabeth Hissam, Milford; Janice Wildrick, Marshalls Creek; Gloria Bryson, Jackson Township; Camille Buzzard, Delaware; Water Gap; Toni Lisinichia, Forks Township; and Clara Strunk, Stroudsburg's Phoenix Co.

Eliminated in the judging were Colleen Morris, Slatington; Vera Safin, Delaware Water Gap; Sara Mae Ace, Bushkill; Jane Bush, Stroudsburg's Chemical Co.; Wanda Altomose, Mount Pocono; Louise Zannette, Pen Argyl; and Doris Billig, Slatington.

One contestant — Carolyn Smith of Gilbert — entered by the West End Fire Co. did not appear for the initial judging.

Judges scored each girl on the basis of beauty of face and figure, poise and personality, awarding from one to 10 points to each entry.

The judges, who will also decide the final winners, are Ernest McNeely and Arthur Widmer, both of Stroudsburg, and Sterling Strauser, East Stroudsburg.

Frank Read of the Acme Hose Co., host organization for the association convention, had only one bad moment during the night.

That came when he inadvertently jumped from the number seven girl, Matilda Riedmiller, to the number nine entry, Sara Mae Ace. Both are from Bushkill which may have accounted for the error.

In the process, Read ignored Elizabeth Hissam of Milford, who with Miss Riedmiller, was one of the finalists. Miss Ace was eliminated. The error was called to Read's attention by the judges and Miss Hissam followed Miss Ace to the stage.

Among the more elaborate fireworks displays were the name of Acme Hose Co. number one spelled out in lights and flanked by an American flag and a fish, which apparently swam along the ground from the audience's left to right.

Six Pennsylvania Retailers Request Court To Ban Proposed Minimum Wage Order

HARRISBURG (AP)—Six Pennsylvania retailers yesterday asked Dauphin County Court to throw out the state's proposed minimum wage order for women and minors in retail trade.

Earlier the court refused to delay the effective date of the proposed order. The delay was asked by the same six retailers in a separate action.

The proposed state order would raise minimum wages in the industry to $1 an hour by Jan. 1, 1960. The order is scheduled to take effect July 1.

Atty. Edward C. First Jr. of Harrisburg, representing the six retailers, contended the order should not be allowed because the State Wage Board failed to take sworn testimony and failed to accept documentary evidence in an orderly fashion.

First also contended that the appointments of the board members expired Aug. 4, 1957 and that they were not reappointed until Feb. 21, 1958. He said the seven public hearings were held before the members were reappointed and that no further hearings were held before the board made its recommendation.

This, First said, amounted to the issuance of a recommendation without holding a single legal hearing.

Retailers who contested the order were: Kilmer Bros. of Tionesta, Forest County; Warrenton Variety Store, Pittsburgh; Gysegem Quality Bakery, Charleroi, Washington County; Leppert's Variety Store, Northumberland, Northumberland County; Wohl-farth's Bakery, Pittsburgh, and Richardson's, Ross Twp., near Pittsburgh.

The judge pointed out that the next session of commonwealth court, at which the petition of the six will be heard, will open Oct. 8—one week after the wage order becomes mandatory.

AND THE WINDS BLEW—Contestants in the beauty pageant being held in conjunction with the Four-County Firemen's Assn. convention wore a variety of clothing in an effort to keep warm while awaiting their turn to parade, in bathing suits, yet, before the judges last night in Memorial Stadium. Chilled beauty on stage at the moment is being judged.

Jack-Of-All-Trades

Coach Carries Full Load Of Teaching Classes

EDITOR'S NOTE—The recent resignation from coaching duties by four teachers in the Pocono Mountain Joint School system has brought an outstanding amount of pro and con discussion. The Daily Record, in this series of articles, is presenting both sides of the debate.

By Leonard Randolph
HARRY Drennan, president of Pocono Mountain Joint School Committee, closed discussion on the coaching staff at the June 11 meeting with this comment:

"Jointure policy is that coaching of sports is a part of the duties of the health and physical education teacher. And that's all there is to it."

The board had gone through a brief discussion of requests from its four coaches to be relieved from coaching duties. The four men had previously been turned down on their request for compensation for coaching.

The four "health and physical education teachers" in question are Joseph Murray of Barrett, John Bush of Tobyhanna Township, Harry Werkhiser of Pocono Township and Donald Wismer of Coolbaugh.

Wismer is, by the board's definition, a "health and physical education" teacher.

But this is what he actually teaches in Coolbaugh Township High School at Tobyhanna:

He teaches five classes each week in Problems of Democracy.

He teaches five classes each week in American History. He teaches five classes each week in World History.

He teaches three classes each week of seventh grade shop for boys.

He teaches two classes each week of eighth grade shop for boys.

He teaches two classes each week of ninth grade shop for boys.

Wismer is not certified to teach shop. When he started work for the Coolbaugh Township School District 10 years ago he was told that he would have to teach it.

The board said it would get him an "emergency" certificate to teach the course. Although he did not—and still does not—feel qualified to teach a course in shop, Wismer was assigned to the course.

His "emergency" certificate came through. It has been renewed each year since then by the county school office.

Unlike regular certification, an "emergency" is supposed to be good for only a small part of the school year. Though sending the renewal through at the proper time, however, it can be made to last the full year.

This past year, prompted by renewed demands for assignment of a qualified teacher to the course or, at least, relief of himself as teacher of 'shop' Wismer was allowed to treat the subject as though it were a study period.

In effect, during the past year, the "shop" courses at Coolbaugh Township High School have been vacant periods during which students were "supervised" in a classroom by Wismer.

But they are still occupied or assigned periods.

In his major field of "health and physical education," these are the courses to which Wismer is assigned at Coolbaugh: Three classes a week in eighth grade hygiene.

Two periods per week in physical education for seventh, eighth and ninth grade boys.

Two periods per week in physical education for 10th, 11th and 12th grade girls.

One period per week in physical education for 10th, 11th and 12th grade girls.

In addition to these regularly-assigned periods of "instruction," Wismer has a homeroom. As a homeroom teacher he is responsible for the preparation of attendance records and other papers which go into the jointure's central office or to the State Department of Public Instruction.

Each of the "periods" listed above lasts 45 minutes. Coolbaugh Township School operates on a seven-period-per-day schedule. It is in operation five days per week. This means there are 35 periods in each school week.

Out of those 35 periods, Wismer is teaching 22 periods of non-health and physical education courses and 12 periods in courses directly affiliated with the field in which he majored.

This means he has assigned instructional duties amounting to 34 out of 35 possible periods.

What happens to the remaining period?

This is devoted to Wismer's homeroom. It's the only full period he has and the only one which he can spend with the homeroom students.

But these are all regular school time classes. When it comes to his coaching activities, Wismer's job stacks up like this:

Ordinarily he coaches both varsity and junior varsity basketball and varsity baseball. (This past year the school had no baseball schedule since it had no field.)

From the first to the last of November, Wismer has regular practice for his basketball squads. This generally extends from 3:30 (when school closes) to 6 p.m. That's two and one-half hours per practice. It amounts to roughly 50 hours for the month.

Beginning with Dec. 1, when basketball season opens, he coaches practice two nights per week at two and one-half hours per practice. The teams have two games per week. Each game night consumes about five hours time, on the average. The season continues to the end of February, a three-month period.

This means another 15 hours per week. Figured at the rate of four weeks per month, this means Wismer is devoting an additional estimated 180 hours to coaching during basketball season.

Total time spent on basketball alone during practice and season's play: 230 hours.

That is the equivalent of about 39 regular school teaching days.

And the total does not include any time spent on baseball coaching when there is a baseball season.

Nor does it include the "incidental" which go with coaching—the time spent in driving students home who have missed a bus; the special time taken in coaching with a player who needs special help.

In presenting their case to the Joint Committee's subcommittee, the four coaches were not asking for "special treatment" for themselves.

They asked that teachers who have "extra duties" be compensated for these duties. This, in their view, would include the teacher who handles the class play or any of the other extra-curricular functions which teachers supervise.

As Drennan said at the June 11 meeting, the jointure apparently considers these things a part of the "professional employee's" contract.

In response to Wismer's letter asking for relief from coaching duties, mailed May 26, the coach has received the following letter, dated June 12:

"Your letter of May 26, 1958, addressed to Lawrence Reitz, Secretary of the Coolbaugh Township Board was turned over to the Pocono Mountain Joint Schools Board for action.

"This is to advise you that the Joint Board considers your coaching activities included in your contract with the Joint Schools. Therefore, any substantial reduction in the duties under your contract would in effect be a request for a new contract or a resignation of your old position.

"It is the desire of the Joint Board to continue you in your present position with your present duties. However, if that is not possible for you to do they will attempt to find another position for you in the school system. If this is not possible then the Board has no alternative but to consider your letter of resignation."

The letter is signed by David E. Nelson, board secretary.

The letter from Nelson makes no reference to Wismer's request for a leave of absence. This request post-dated the letter asking for relief from coaching duties by two weeks.

Whereas the May 26 letter asked for relief from coaching on grounds of health and enclosed a written statement from Wismer's physician, a June 10 letter said:

"Due to the shortness of available time, I must add to my previous letter. If I cannot be released from coaching, I must then request the Board to grant me a one year leave of absence without pay for restoration of health. Although I have completed 10 years of service and am therefore entitled to Sabbatical Leave at half salary, I am asking only an unpaid leave."

The joint board was informed that Wismer had asked for the leave of absence. But the June 10 letter was not read at the June 11 meeting and may not have been received by them.

Air Spraying Of Gypsy Moth Complete In Monroe County

APPROXIMATELY 55,000 acres in Monroe and Carbon Counties were sprayed last weekend in a campaign against the gypsy moth.

Two large planes, based at Wilkes-Barre-Scranton Airport, did the job. According to Walter May, program chief, the half million acre federal-state spraying project began April 24 and has been running smoothly. Only a few cases of fish deaths as the result of the DDT spraying were reported.

Mixture

The spray, a mixture of one pound of DDT and one gallon of kerosene base, is spread one gallon to an acre.

It is not considered harmful to mammals. One of the major reasons for contamination of streams and water supplies was kept to a minimum was the use of small planes to spray border areas near streams, reservoirs, watersheds and populated areas.

Definite results of the spraying won't be known until mid Summer when traps to catch the moths are set throughout the sprayed region.

Metropolitan Edison Makes $5,000 Donation To Chamber

Funds To Be Used For Water Line

A CONTRIBUTION for $5,000 from the Metropolitan Edison Co. was presented to the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce at a meeting of directors yesterday.

It is intended to help allay costs of extending a water line to the new Drackett Co. plant site in Stroud Township. It was presented by Theodore Henning, local manager for the utility.

Option On Land
It was announced that a New Jersey firm has taken an option on a tract of land in Delaware Water Gap and plans to move there.

Chamber members were asked to support Acme Hose Co. in its sponsorship of the Four-County Firemen's Assn. convention here this week.

R. D. Cornwall, recently named vice president, announced that he will name team captains for the current membership drive soon.

School Faces Half-Day Sessions

it wants an appraised value by August 1.

"The first day of August is the deadline and if they (Jacobs Co.) don't have enough men to get the job done, then they'd damned well better get enough men in here to get the job done by then," Quick said.

Lesoiné and Achterman pointed out that the county is "trying to get figures for the weakest districts first so that we'll be able to use those figures as guides when we set the assessment percentage."

Jacobs Co. supervisor Limual Kennedy last week turned over to Commissioners figures showing that Price Township's new appraisal (market) value total had been set at $1,417,542.

At that time Chief Assessor George Brands said he thought the figures might include non-taxable properties such as State forest lands.

Yesterday Lesoiné told the group that he had "checked with Kennedy." The figure released for Price by Jacobs Co. is "all taxable property," Lesoiné said.

The matter is important because it serves as a preliminary barometer of how much real property values (not assessments) are going to jump in Monroe under the new system.

Market Value
Price township's estimated market value, according to the State Tax Equalization Board's most recent figures (released in 1957 but based on 1956 values) was $847,100.

The State Tax Board also shows that Price property was assessed at a total of $122,900. This would be about 14.5 percent of the market value.

Price Township has always been Monroe County's lowest-assessed district, STEB figures show. Commissioners have maintained that, before setting the assessment ratio, they need to know appraised (market) value figures for Price and Ross Townships.

Commissioners are now contending, however, that they also need figures for the Third Ward, East Stroudsburg because it is among the highest-assessed districts. Solicitor Achterman disagreed with this yesterday when he pointed out that "one ward is not important because it is part of a district not a district by itself."

Dietrich noted that "if figures (on property value) had been ready we could have started on our school building in March."

Mills and the rest of the delegation, however, agreed that "if you can get figures to us by August 1, that will be fine with us."

Lesoiné ended the conference after placing a call to Kennedy's office.

"Mrs. Kennedy (the supervisor's wife and chief assistant) tells me that Polk is ready for final approval. In Chestnut Hill and Eldred, enumeration is all done, but the mapping isn't," he said.

Seal Sale Meeting

MRS. STELLA Fleming, executive secretary of the Monroe County Tuberculosis and Health Society, and Mrs. David Linderman, office secretary, will attend a Regional Seal Sale Conference in Scranton today.

The session will take place at the Hotel Casper.

Ralph Vigars, seal sale secretary from the state organization, and a national representative will also be in attendance.

Mrs. Fleming announced yesterday that x-rays will be given at the Tobyhanna Signal Depot on June 23 and 24 and food handlers x-rays will begin on June 30.

Federal Watershed Plan Worker To Meet With County Officials

MONROE County Commission Chairman John Lesoiné said yesterday that "from now on if we want information about flood damage we'll call the Federal Government, not the State."

Lesoiné made the comment

after he received a letter notifying him that a Federal Watershed Plan worker will meet with him and A. Norman Dietrick, district soil conservationist, this afternoon.

Purpose of the appointment is to determine flood damage figures for Tannersville growing out of the 1953 flood. Lesoiné has criticized handling of Pocono Township's request for flood protection from the State Department of Forest and Waters.

After promising the "start" of an overall study of flood protection needs in the Pocono Creek area, district flood control chief John Matso then requested figures showing flood damages in the area from Lesoiné and the county.

Figures Needed

Lesoiné told Matso that he felt the State Department should already have those figures on hand. Matso said it did not, according to Lesoiné.

So Lesoiné began trying to get figures locally. Civil Defense did not have them on file, he said.

But CD headquarters chief Catherine Miller has been trying to collect the figures from Philadelphia Corps of Engineers sources.

Yesterday, at regular Commissioners meeting, Lesoiné received a letter from the area U. S. Soil Conservation Service. It was signed by Donald T. Dinsmore, area conservationist, who has worked with the county in setting up application for a watershed-flood protection-soil conservation project for Pocono and Brodheads Creeks.

The letter said: "I have looked into the matter of securing flood damage figures for the town of Tannersville and making these figures available to the County Commissioners in Monroe County."

"Since the application for a P.L. 566 Watershed Project and flood prevention plan on Pocono Creek has been received, we will be able to proceed and cooperate with you in securing these damages."

Session

"On Tuesday morning, June 17 (today) at 11, Samuel K. Brugger, the economist for the Watershed Work Plan Party will be ready to start with this determination. He will report to Mr. A. N. Dietrick."

"I hope that you and Mr. Dietrick can get together for a short while before this time so that he (Dietrick) has a full understanding of the information you need. I feel sure we will be able to work in this information as we obtain the necessary damage figures involving Tannersville."

The meeting has been rescheduled for 1 p. m. today.

New Inflation Warning

Our attention has been called to a number of labor-management negotiations which have ended with agreements to forego wage and price increases during the new contract period.

Paradoxically, both recession and inflation fears played an important part in arriving at the "stand pat" decisions.

It is a fact, leading economists report, that inflation remains as the chief threat to America's well-being at the very same time the nation is struggling to pull itself out of the recession.

The warning was sounded anew the other day by William A. McDonnell, an industrial spokesman who appeared before a congressional committee to protest unsound fiscal policies in government.

He stated his argument very forcibly when he cited the sad experience Europe has had with inflation. He recalled that as a captain in the U.S. Army in France during 1918, his pay was $200 a month. He received it in the form of 1,000 francs.

"Today," he said, "if I were receiving $200 a month in France, I would be getting 84,000 francs. If equivalent depreciation had happened to the American dollar, a low-priced car today would cost you $250,000; a life insurance policy for $100,000 would keep a widow in a second-class boarding house for about 10 months, and a $100 social security check would buy two pounds of hamburger."

These are comparisons that make us shudder. They should also make us unyielding foes of inflation.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Biting The Hand?

Philadelphia Mayor Richard Dilworth's mouthings against the Keystone Shortway are to be expected, but when a responsible person such as James W. Heward, of the bond firm of Butcher and Sherrerd, follows the Dilworth line without investigating the whole Shortway situation, it's about time that he and his associates be brought to an accounting.

Mr. Heward is president of the Municipal Bond Club of Philadelphia and signed a resolution for that group opposing the Shortway on the grounds that it would threaten the stability of the Pennsylvania Turnpike bonds. Mr. Heward quotes no figures, records, or future projections to prove that the Shortway will affect the solvency of the Turnpike.

He ignores statements of responsible highway officials that there will be enough traffic by the time the Shortway is built to support both a toll-free Shortway and the existing toll roads, if the bonds have not yet been retired.

His sole authority for his Shortway opposition is the controversial "Brinkhoff" report which was based on construction of the Shortway by 1959. The most optimistic estimates for Shortway construction are 1965 and the average thinking is 1968 to 1973.

He simply swallowed the Dilworth clap-strap and signed his name to a resolution.

What burns us up is that Butcher and Sherrerd gets the majority of the Authority financing out of this area. They have made substantial commissions from the sale of bonds on the Clearfield Municipal Authority and the Curwensville Sewage Authority. We understand they have the bond issue on the Clearfield sewage plant too.

A responsible firm like Butcher and Sherrerd should have checked the implications of the whole matter before becoming party to the Dilworth-inspired statement.

Mr. Heward can't shrug this off by wearing two hats. He can't be against the Shortway as Bond Club president and non-committal as an official in Butcher and Sherrerd doing business with Clearfield County. Just what is Butcher and Sherrerd's stand on the Shortway?

If the Clearfield area becomes an economic desert, who's going to pay for Mr. Heward's bonds? It will have to be the bears up here in these mountains. You will recall Mayor Dilworth says the Shortway is being built "to satisfy the curiosity of the bears."

Someone should have a nice friendly talk with Mr. Heward and tell him that Pennsylvania doesn't end on the eastern bank of Schuylkill River.

Robert S. Allen Reports...

Nuclear Power Program

Washington — The impending departure of feuding Atomic Commission Chairman Lewis Strauss is already making a big difference.

Leaders of the Joint Atomic Committee and private industry have reached agreement on a huge nuclear power development program that dwarfs the one proposed by the commission under Strauss.

The outgoing New Yorker and the committee were long at bitter loggerheads over this issue. Last Spring, relations between them became so strained that Commissioner Willard Libby had to substitute for Strauss in discussions on this deadlocked problem.

With Strauss being replaced by John A. McCone, California industrialist, the Joint Committee and business leaders have formulated the largest and most significant nuclear power program in U.S. history. Its key features are:

19 plants to be built by the government, over a period of five to seven years, to produce 2,000,000 kilowatts, at a total cost of $875,000,000.

$100,000,000 a year to be spent by the Atomic Commission in the next five to seven years for nuclear reactor research and development.

Large subsidies to private industry to build nuclear reactors and power plants. This far-reaching plan, the result of numerous meetings between committee leaders and business officials, is detailed in an 18-page memorandum titled "Expanded Civilian Nuclear Power Program."

The main objective of this giant program, states this policy declaration, "is to fortify the position of leadership of the U.S. in the eyes of the world in the peaceful application of atomic energy, particularly with regard to electric power."

Committee leaders who formulated this plan are: Rep. Carl Albert (D., Cal.) chairman; Senator Clinton Anderson (D., N.M.), vice chairman; and Representatives Chet Holifield (D., Calif.), James Van Zandt (R., Pa.) and James Patterson (R., Conn.).

Industry officials and scientists who worked with them are: Dr. Henry D. Smyth, former Atomic Commission member and now at Princeton University; Titus L. Clair of Commonwealth Edison Co.; Dr. Chauncey Starr of Atomic International; Dr. W. H. Zinn, General Nuclear Engineering Co.; and James Grahl, American Public Power Association.

Highlights of the significant backstage memorandum are: "The scope of this nuclear power program covers a total of 19 reactors of diversified types, including nine reactors of large size, five of intermediate size, and five small reactors or pilot plants, totaling over 2,000,000 electrical kilowatts. . . The total cost of this expanded program will amount to around $875,000,000 over a five to seven-year period. In addition, the AEC should support a program of general reactor research and development at a level of $100,000,000 per year average."

"The AEC should consider requests from industry for assistance of the following type: (1) Waiver of established Commission charges for use of source and special nuclear materials; (2) loan of heavy water without charge to industry; (3) performance in AEC laboratories without charge of mutually agreed research and development."

"The framework for cooperating with industry in the design and construction of prototypes and full-scale nuclear power plants is visualized as consisting of two parts. The first may be described as consisting of private construction and ownership of plants with certain research and development assistance by the Commission. The second would consist of AEC construction under contract and ownership of certain prototype reactors and other projects not otherwise constructed with as much industrial participation as possible."

How Much Has This June Graduate Learned?

George Sokolsky Says...

Supporting Coffee Nation

It would seem that Americans are obligated to drink coffee so that Brazil's economy will not go to the devil. Unfortunately the coffee-producing countries are outpriced themselves and ingenious merchant s developed all kinds of "instant" brands which provide more coffee per pound than the old-style coffee bean.

So now, an $8,000,000 fund has been established "for promoting coffee consumption and defending coffee economy." The fund will be built by charging 25 cents per sack as a surcharge by the exporting countries if the plan is ratified.

This sounds like a public relations expert's idea of how to get a client and to do some work. What Brazil and the other coffee-growing countries need to remember is that nobody has to buy their coffee and that Africa is exporting coffee and except for connoisseurs of whom there are very few, most coffees taste alike.

The problem of maintaining prices for excess agricultural products is having the reverse effect of knocking down the value of currencies in those countries which fail to recognize that the large consuming markets are very few indeed. The United States, which is the largest consuming market for most goods, cannot carry the load for every country even with the best of intentions.

Shouldering Burdens

When Vice President Nixon was in Latin America and got spit upon, one of the factors in the outrageous conduct was that this country did not buy enough coffee, enough lead, tin and zinc and that we sold surplus wheat and cotton. The Canadians are annoyed with us because we sell surplus wheat and want us to give the stuff away free to NATO which is not to use it in countries to which Canada can sell wheat.

Why? Why must we carry the load of maintaining the economy of other countries? Why must our citizens be taxed so that Canada might be able to reduce taxes? Why must we drink coffee so that Brazil's currency will be on a par? Why does not Brazil permit the development of her natural resources, particularly oil, by expert foreign capital, as the United States was developed by foreign capital in our early years?

The answer always is that if we do not do exactly what 80 foreign countries want us to do, they will all go over to Soviet Russia. If that is so, we are already as defeated as Messrs. Khrushchev and Mikoyan say we are and we had better take a look at what is happening to our own economy, particularly to our hoard of gold at Fort Knox, too much of which is already earmarked for foreign accounts.

Obviously, it is impossible for any one country, whether it is the United States or Soviet Russia, to carry on its shoulders the total economy of the human race. Certainly the United States does not possess the reserves to support the currencies of those countries where currencies are falling.

If we have become unpopular in Brazil because the cruzero has dropped to unfortunate lows, it is just too bad. This country cannot support Brazil's currency during a period of inflation in Brazil and depression here.

All that stands between Roman Catholic Brazil and atheistic Soviet Russia is the exchange rate of the cruzero (normally 50 to the dollar; today 148 to the dollar), then the United States can do nothing about it but re-institute the Monroe Doctrine and get ready for our defense.

One of the great advantages enjoyed by the United States in its industrial and transportation development was that it never worried about the nationality of the money invested in this country. We just went ahead.

The answer, it seems to me, is a different one. During the exalted days of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Administration and a more recently during the Truman and Eisenhower Administrations, much of the world has reached the conclusion that domestic problems in their own countries can best be cured by leeching upon the United States.

Officially, this has cost us about $60,000,000,000; unofficially, the figure is too enormous to estimate. Once some countries realize that Uncle Sam is no longer an easy touch, they will develop adequate ability to take care of themselves as they did before the United States took on the burdens of the human race. They somehow managed to get along on their own.

Supporting Firemen

East Stroudsburg, Pa.

Dear Editor:

I would like to congratulate the firemen of East Stroudsburg for the manner in which they are attempting to raise funds for necessary expenses. I should think the property owners of our community would be only too glad to support the Four-Glad Firemen's Convention by purchasing tickets for the fireworks and the water follies.

As a property owner, it is reassuring to know that, should an emergency or a fire occur in my home or neighborhood, our volunteer firemen would be at my assistance.

I would hate to think how rapidly a fire could destroy all of my family's possessions if the firemen had to stand idly without the necessary equipment to bring a fire under control.

Every member of our family (in which there are no firemen) have purchased tickets for the fireworks or water follies. This is more than we would normally spend in one week's period for entertainment, but we think it is cheap fire protection.

I hope every property owner will look at it from this point of view and get behind the firemen.

Remember August, 1955. How many individuals owe their lives to these same firemen? Now they need our support. Who knows when we may need theirs again?

Few Flags Displayed

Swiftwater, Pa.

Dear Mr. Editor:

It only takes a few words to express my feelings on the memorable day — Saturday, June 14, Flag Day; but up along the Lackawanna Trail from Swiftwater to Stroudsburg you would never know it was Flag Day, as you could count the flags out on your one hand — really shameful.

People today don't realize they are living under the American Flag and not a dictatorship, and should prove this by honoring our Flag on its day, June 14.

MRS. A. GERLINGER

The Pennsylvania Story

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — Of considerably more than passing interest is the fact that the so-called "Greater Philadelphia Movement" is one of the big guns sparking opposition to construction of the proposed mid-state Keystone Shortway.

Philadelphia interests consistently have objected to the building of the controversial 290-mile Sharon-Stroudsburg interstate expressway, fearing an economic diversion from the Quaker City — indeed a distinct possibility with a road in competition with the existing Pennsylvania Turnpike.

To many, such opposition is viewed in the same light as the opposition to the development of the railroads during the canal boat days of a century gone by — when canal interests feared that the transportation advance would cut their economic throats.

It did — but the science of transportation moved ahead — as did the general economy. Airlines and trucking interests have struck a similar blow to railroads. The fighting similarity of the oppositionists is present in every such instance.

Headed By PDH But there is more to the Philadelphia opposition than these facts.

One of the loudest and biggest squawkers against the Shortway is the Greater Philadelphia Movement.

Here is an interesting point on this score: Pennsylvania's State Department of Highways is the state agency handling the federal interstate road building program in the Keystone State — of which the Keystone Shortway is programmed as a part.

Shortway, Stevens, GPM

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — Of considerably more than passing interest is the fact that the so-called "Greater Philadelphia Movement" is one of the big guns sparking opposition to construction of the proposed mid-state Keystone Shortway.

Philadelphia interests consistently have objected to the building of the controversial 290-mile Sharon-Stroudsburg interstate expressway, fearing an economic diversion from the Quaker City — indeed a distinct possibility with a road in competition with the existing Pennsylvania Turnpike.

To many, such opposition is viewed in the same light as the opposition to the development of the railroads during the canal boat days of a century gone by — when canal interests feared that the transportation advance would cut their economic throats.

It did — but the science of transportation moved ahead — as did the general economy. Airlines and trucking interests have struck a similar blow to railroads. The fighting similarity of the oppositionists is present in every such instance.

Headed By PDH But there is more to the Philadelphia opposition than these facts.

One of the loudest and biggest squawkers against the Shortway is the Greater Philadelphia Movement.

Here is an interesting point on this score: Pennsylvania's State Department of Highways is the state agency handling the federal interstate road building program in the Keystone State — of which the Keystone Shortway is programmed as a part.

Fourth In Series

'Learner' Rates Slated For Zones

THIS another portion of a series explaining provisions of the new retail trade minimum wage regulations which become effective July 1 in Pennsylvania:

Learners

1. Wages—In the two wage tables set out above, "learner" rates are stated for each zone. An employer may pay wages at these applicable learner rates to no more than one (1) female or minor learner employee to two (2) other persons, or fraction thereof, regardless of age or sex, in his establishment.

(For Example: John Jones operates a retail hardware and paint store in Upper Darby, Pennsylvania (Zone 2). He employs four adult male salesmen, a truck driver, and a female bookkeeper. Under this regulation he would be entitled to hire between July 1, 1958, and January 1, 1959, three learners at the applicable learner rate of 75 cents an hour, while being required to pay his female bookkeeper at least 85 cents an hour. If these learners worked in excess of 42 hours in a week, he would be required to pay them $1.13 for each overtime hour.)

2. Definition—for the purpose of this regulation, a "learner" is:

(a) every woman and every minor with less than 600 hours "spent" in the occupation;

(b) Observation: The word "occupation" is defined in this regulation as:

(1) Any work in a gasoline service station or automotive establishment;

(2) Any work in a food store;

(3) Any work in a drug or variety store;

(4) Any work in a department, apparel or dry goods store; or

(5) Any work in any other kind of retail establishment.

Thus if a woman has had six (6) years' experience in a super-market, she is not deemed to have "spent 600 hours" in the "occupation" of "drug or variety" or "department" store.)

(b) any minor under 18 years of age who (1) is legally certificated and employed under the Child Labor Law and (2) if working outside school hours on a day or week when attending school, is employed not in excess of 4 hours a day or 28 hours a week.

(Observation: One of the most difficult sections to understand of the Regulation (4—Definitions) and its supplement (Interpretation Bulletin No. 4-A, Paragraph A), is the language relating to "minors under 18 as learners."

We are informed by the Director of the Bureau of Women and Children that the following is the intent of the Secretary:

So long as a minor is under 18 years of age and is legally certificated under the Child Labor Law, the hours he spends in any "occupation" in the retail trades will not count against his learner's status, while he is under 18 years of age, provided he is never permitted to work during the school term for more than 4 hours a day or 28 hours a week. This daily and weekly hours' limitation does not apply during Christmas, summer and other vacation periods when the minor is not required to be in school.

For Example: (1) John White, age 16, is legally certificated to work in a country grocery store. During the school year, he works after school for 4 hours each day and for 8 hours on Saturday. Thus in one school term he could legally spend 600 hours in the occupation.

However, his employer could still treat him as a learner during the summer vacation months and any other succeeding period of employment regardless of the total number of hours he worked in the grocery store until he reached the age of 18.

When he becomes 18, all the time he has spent as a minor under 18 for that particular employer or for other food stores, would then retroactively count toward his 600 hours of experience.

Example (2) Eddie Brown, age 15, has been legally certificated to work in a hardware store during his school term and summer vacation. By the time he is 17, he has spent over 600 hours in the occupation. At age 17, he quits school and takes full-time employment with another hardware retailer. His new employer may treat him as a learner until he reaches age 18 or acquires 600 hours of experience on his full-time job, whichever occurs sooner.

Example (3) Jimmy Gray, age 16, is legally certificated to work at a gasoline station. During school term his employer permits him to work 6 hours after school each day and eight hours on Saturday.

Although this is permissible under the Child Labor Law which permits male minors 16 years of age and over to work eight hours a day and 44 hours a week, his employer and subsequent gasoline station operators could not treat Jimmy as a learner once he reached 600 hours employment in the occupation, even though he were less than 18 years of age.)

Handicapped Workers

Women and minors whose earning capacity is impaired by reason of age, physical or mental handicap, may be paid less than the prescribed minimum wage rate only after the issuance of a license to their employer by the Department of Labor and Industry, permitting the payment to them of a subminimum wage. Such license shall be granted only upon joint application of the employer and employee.

Hours Of Work

All time required by the employer to be spent in waiting for work to be provided, and all time spent in traveling as part of the employee's duties during normal working hours shall constitute hours of employment for which the minimum rate must be paid.

Travel Expenses

Where an employer requires an employee to travel as part of his duties, he shall reimburse the employee for his actual travel expenses, including food and lodging.

Uniforms

Where an employer requires the employee to wear a specified uniform, the employer shall buy the uniforms and pay for their laundering or cleaning unless they are made of a material which does not require pressing. (In that event, the employer is not obligated to pay for their laundering or cleaning.)

Grandmother Searching For Fires At Hickory Run Park

BALKEESLEE—A 58-year-old grandmother is the eyes of the forest fire watching service at nearby Hickory Run State park.

Mrs. Cora Christman has maintained her post in the tiny wood and glass enclosed tower platform, atop an elevation 1,820 feet above sea level, since 1943.

Her domain is the 15,000 acres of park and several square miles of surrounding land.

Equipped with binoculars, a topographic map of the area, telephone and two-way radio, she is in constant touch with other nearby towers, forest wardens and fire fighting crews.

Checks Map

When smoke is spotted, she checks her map to pinpoint the location and relays the information to fire crews and wardens.

Fire within the park is reported to the park office and crewmen extinguish the blaze.

Foresters say Mrs. Christman's work has been so excellent that, although dozens of small fires have broken out in the park, none has ever burned more than an acre.

Mrs. Christman got into the fire watching career in 1942 when her daughter, Hannah, took over the duties at Stony Point. A few months later Hannah came down with appendicitis and her mother took over. She's been there since.

ENDING"

(Author's Name Below)

The beginning of any illness is the best time it may be more quickly cured. Serious sickness has not yet taken full hold.

Some people begin badly by either neglecting to take care of themselves or attempting self treatment. Unless they are lucky, sickness time is prolonged and sometimes life, itself, is endangered.

A quicker, happier ending to any sickness is almost assured if you consult your physician quickly and take the specific medicines he may prescribe for your particular trouble.

Hallmark:

The proud craftsman's
signature

A craftsman's hallmark is a zealously guarded possession. He puts it only on those of his works he considers particularly worthy. This hallmark is his way of saying, "I made this . . . and I am proud of it."

The California Oil Company's hallmark is the chevron you see above. We put it on our products, our equipment, our stations. It is worn with pride by our employees. It is displayed with pride wherever the company is represented.

The Chevron hallmark is our way of saying, "There is nothing finer." We are painstakingly careful that each product and station that bears it lives up to that promise. Our customers, through their experience with our products, have come to know it as a symbol of excellence, a guarantee of quality.

Today, at all Calsos Stations, a new gasoline bears the proud Chevron hallmark: Chevron Supreme. This new, high-octane fuel is produced by some of America's most modern refineries . . . and sold in 26 states through more than 14,000 dealers.

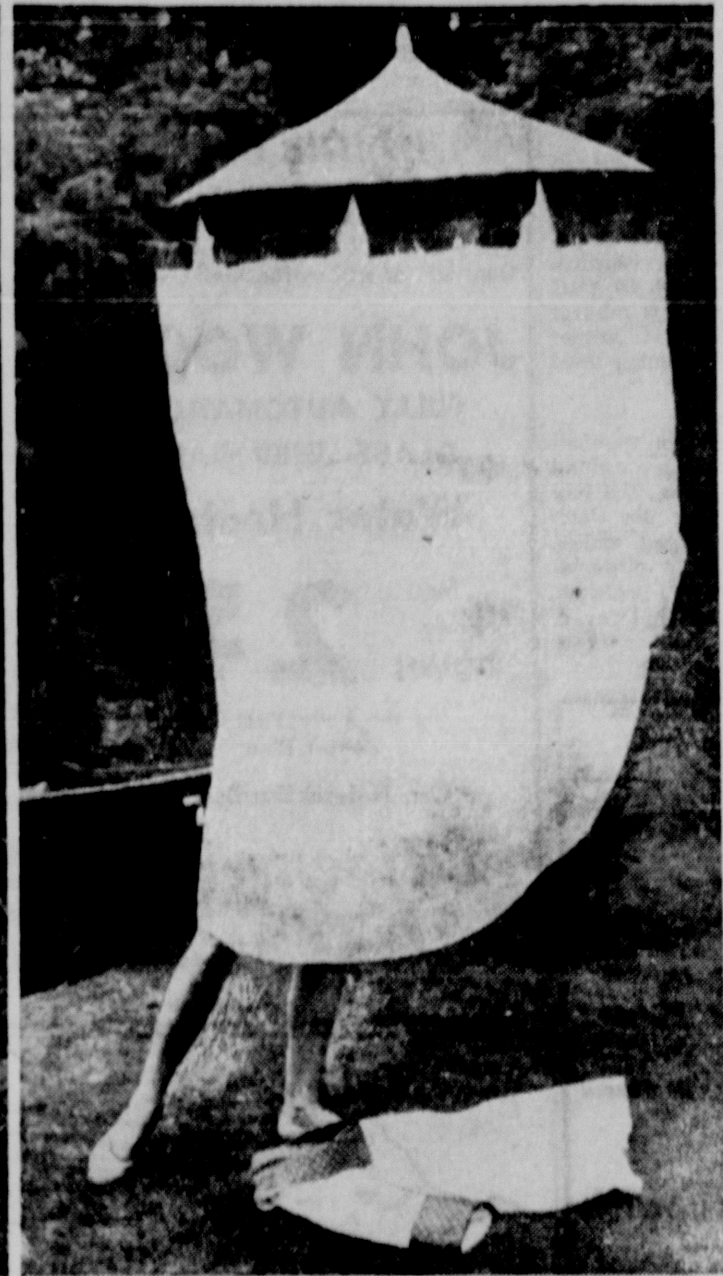

Eastern motorists will discover—as have millions from Canada to Mexico—that Chevron Supreme completely lives up to our hallmark's guarantee of quality and excellence. For in every way this is a product truly worthy of the proud Chevron hallmark.

DESERT CHRIST

The Last Supper took more than a year to complete.

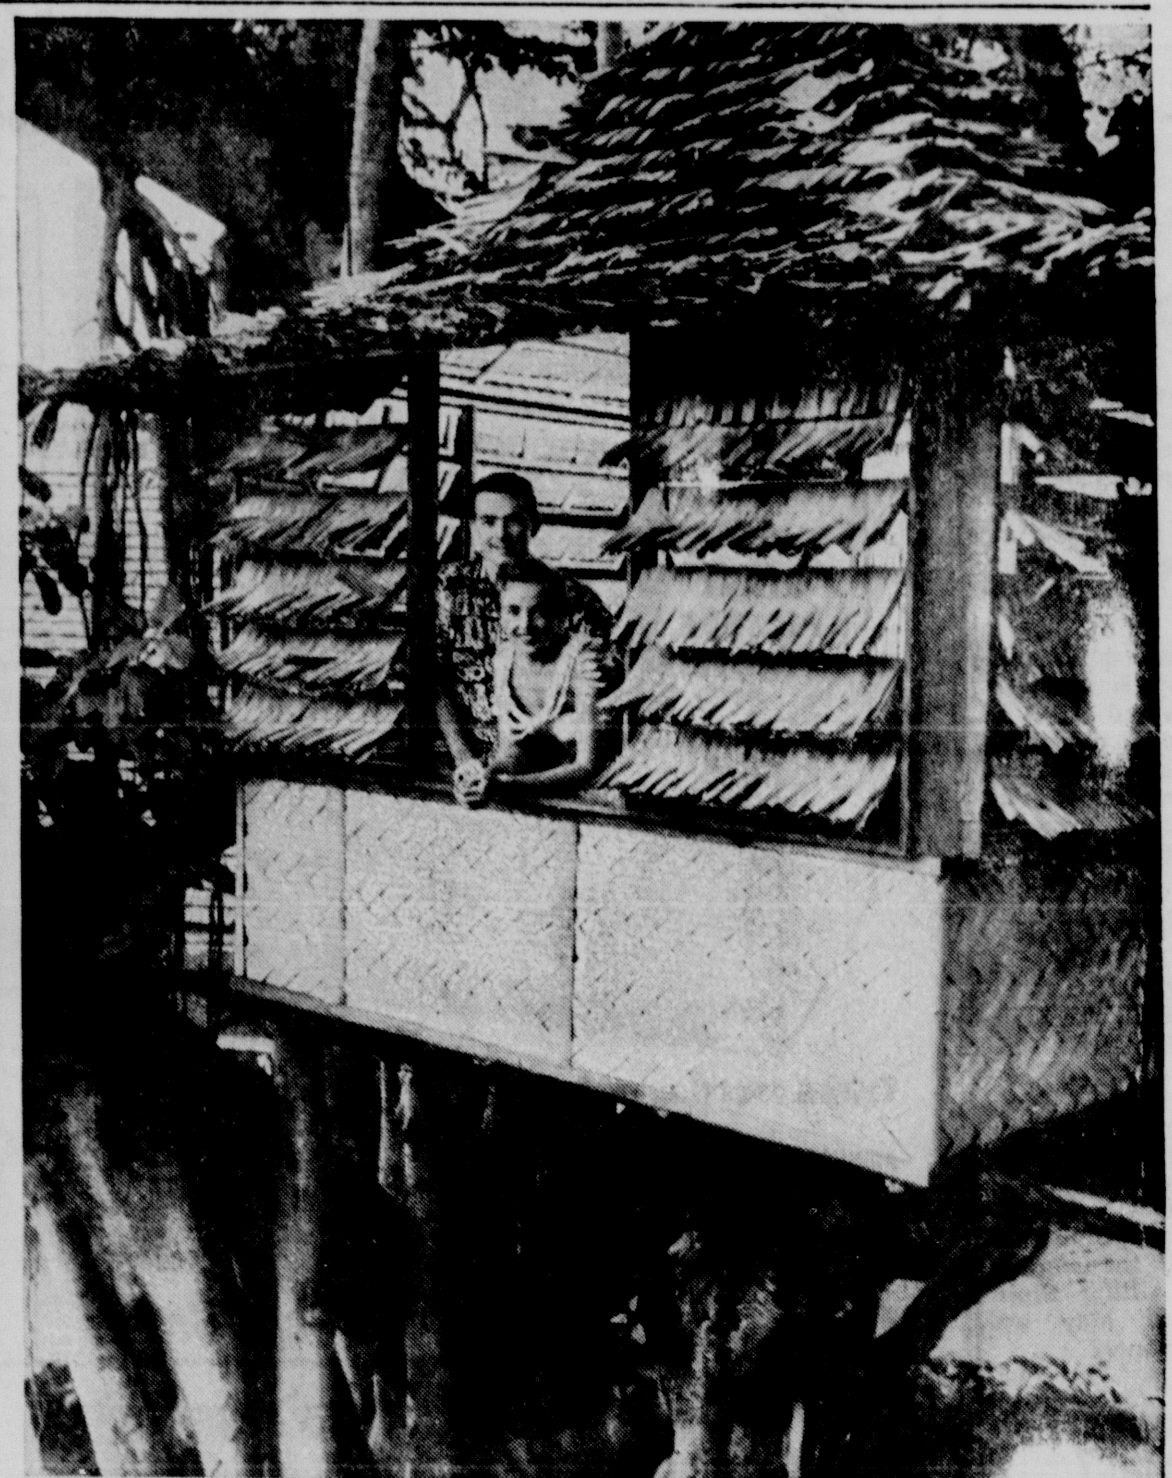

This figure of Christ stands on hillside in the desert.

UP FROM THE FLOOR of Yucca Valley, Calif., a winding dirt road leads into a unique place of worship—Desert Christ park. Scattered among the Joshua trees and yuccas are the sculptured figures of Christ, His disciples and other Biblical figures. On the five-acre homestead stands a chapel of native stone. Antone Martin of Inglewood, Calif., created this park because of his conscience. As a patternmaker in a Los Angeles aircraft plant, he worked on some of the weapons of modern warfare. Troubled by his conscience, he decided to sculpt a 10-foot, four-ton figure of Christ in concrete. Since the statue was so big, he found a spot for it on the desolate mountainside. Since then, he has added other Biblical figures. Today the park holds 34 concrete figures ranging up to 12 feet in height. The park is always open and is free of charge for visitors.

Down the mountainside, one can see the Sermon on the Mount depicted with Christ's disciples listening to Him.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

Those of us with mink stoles or cashmere sweaters had better wear them tonight for the Israeli Fashion show which will be held on the outdoor terrace at Tamiment, unless, of course, it rains — or snows. Those of us without either had better wear our snuggles.

This is very stimulating weather, but it does get nippy when the sun goes down. However, we'll have our pride to keep us warm. I don't know why it is but people always do get dressed in their best for a fashion show.

It always reminds me of rushing around like crazy trying to get the house near enough to impress the cleaning woman, but anyway that's the way we are.

And I'm going and stay for the whole performance — thanks to the fact that the Daily Record is going to have the summer help of Eney Shick, who thinks she wants a career in journalism. She wasn't discouraged by editing the high school year book, but now we'll see what strawberry festivals and picnics will do for her, and correspondents who forget first names, and people who telephone and assume that you know what the I.P.P. of A.I. is.

However, she's had a good indoctrination — and plenty of warning from her mother — whom you probably remember as Helen Turn in the days of the old Morning Sun.

Anyway, I'll enjoy the fashion show twice as much, knowing somebody else is doing my work.

Is The Ride Down Worth The Long Pull Up?

(Special to The Daily Record from the Scout Trip to Nova Scotia, Sydney Heller reporting.)

Boiestown, N. B. Wednesday. The girls were awakened by the breakfast gong—the potato masher and a frying pan. There was a sudden scramble for clothes. Believe it or not we made it in time for breakfast, even though we were late and in pin curls.

The morning was dreary as it rained so the girls played cards and an ancient radio they had located so they could listen to the top tunes.

The afternoon proved to be more cheerful since it stopped raining. Some of the boys and girls went swimming. Faith Zahorik, Frank Altemose, Kay Altemose and Nancy Flory, Eddie Keyes and myself dragged two canoes a mile or so up the river to enjoy a ride down stream. I won't say how we made out for we all had wet feet and Eddie fell in so many times we lost count. We enjoyed the ride downstream although it took only ten minutes compared to the hour and a half it took to go up.

All the Scouts had originally planned to canoe to Boiestown on Thursday morning but discovered that the load was too great. Some of them took the trip this afternoon. The remaining girls and "Papa" Wyckoff played pinochle to see who was champion but the score remained tied.

Everyone was on time for supper. Again the girls slept outside but George Taylor was the only boy brave enough to pitch his tent and sleep out in the fresh, cold air.

The Wyckoff Shopper

The Friendly Store Wyckoff

Judith Whitenack, the lovely little blonde who came in second in the Miss Pocono Mountains pageant, entertained the audience by sketching various characters whom one meets around town — the grocer, the mixed up adolescent, etc.—and remarked upon her personal interest in people. "When I see a car pass by I wonder what the people in it are thinking, where they are going, how they earn their living, and what their future will be," Judy said as she sketched.

That, I suppose, is how it is with most of us . . . we are curious, in a friendly and rather remote way, about the people who pass us by. Which is exactly the way I felt Saturday when I saw so many strangers in our store.

Who, I wondered, was the attractive woman in white at the Tea Room table next to mine, the 3/4 coat of her ensemble embroidered here and there with pastel flowers? Or the blonde woman in the ripple brimmed, lacy straw hat, wearing a big corsage of white roses? Who was the carrot-topped little fellow of seven or so, with the sprinkling of huge freckles across his nose, and what inspired that big, bubbling-over-with-happiness grin? Somehow I wish I knew!

At lunch in our employees' lounge the other day, we were discussing people with unusual names. I remarked that mother had known a girl named Pearl Button, that one of my teachers had been Pearl Bill, and that I once read about a man whose name was I. M. Faithful but who was sued for divorce by an irate wife who charged that he wasn't.

A few of my co-workers added to the list and then Betty LaBarre remarked, "We have a customer named Ginger Ale. He's in show business, I believe."

It was just coincidence that a few minutes later Dottie Dunn at our switchboard showed me an album of four love songs called "To You" which had been brought in to her by—GINGER ALE. I immediately coralled the young man for our Wyckoff radio program, learning that he is a native of Scranton who now maintains a home at Gouldsboro in between night club and concert engagements. He is a very pleasant person, easy to meet—an interesting conversationalist. And he will sing at Tamiment this evening for the Hadassah Fashion Show and Dance.

I only wish I might become acquainted with ALL of our Wyckoff customers . . . they number hundreds of people who are talented, unusual, and entertaining. They are, when it comes right down to it, the finest people on earth.

I do hope all of the visiting Firemen and their wives will come looking, and perhaps souvenir shopping, at WYCKOFF'S. I may be prejudiced, but I can't imagine touring this area without seeing Pennsylvania's largest small town department store. And if it's extra special merchandise they're looking for—items of cosmopolitan flavor, with a flair, there's no store that has so many from which to choose!

Fire Fighters Maintain Constant Program Of Safety At Tobyhanna Signal Depot

TOBYHANNA — An ever-alert team of fire fighters here at the Signal Depot is not only prepared to spring into action to combat blazes, but they maintain a constant program to halt potential outbreaks.

The program is an expansive one—one that places strict emphasis on the elimination of fire hazards. Its a program that has on several occasions averted potentially serious blazes.

The huge Monroe County military installation is checked frequently, in some cases daily, in an effort to stop fires before they start.

Among the examples describing the preventive steps are: firemen standing by—ready to leap into action without a moment's loss during the operation of welding torches or the unloading operations of gas containers.

The stand by action of the team when helicopters take off. The step stems from the fact that the craft belches flame from its exhaust during the procedure.

These steps are not alone. The firemen also conduct regular inspections which include a check of every building at the depot each week in an effort to detect fire hazards.

Included in the inspection is an examination of some 848 fire extinguishers in the various buildings of the sprawling depot. This step occurs each month.

Each afternoon the prevention-conscious team checks the more hazardous areas to insure everything is in order. In the past, their efforts have uncovered lighted cigarettes in waste paper baskets and soldering irons left on and forgotten.

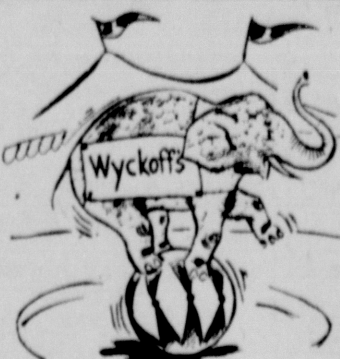

Since organized in March of 1953, the unit has responded to more than 500 alarms—out of which only 82 were considered actual fires. About 10 per cent of the alarms were outside the depot.

Working as a mutual aid department, the unit stands ready to assist volunteer companies in the event of a major blaze. In return, it can expect outside aid should a big fire occur at the installation.

Manning the department is Chief James Oakley, an official devoted principally to averting fires rather than having to combat them. The fire chief has been training neighboring fire units for years, and labels his training as the "Fundamentals of Fire Fighting."
